- The local session opened the day with the rand trading in the low 13.50's, there was demand for dollars throughout the session, although the volumes appeared to be relatively limited, the local unit traded steadily weaker, topping out around 13.6900, before closing the day at 13.6750. Further weakness post the time of the local close saw the rand trade to a high 13.7450, where it currently trades, EURZAR is trading at 16.1575 and GBPZAR is trading at 18.5325.
- On the international front the dollar had another steady day, although the extent of the moves were exceptionally limited, EURUSD confined to a range between 1.1776 and 1.1808, this morning trading at 1.1762.
- After having held steady in the 1260's, gold has seen steady selling emerge and as a result it lost 10 dollars over the session yesterday to close the day trading at 1253.30, this morning some 5 dollars off those levels at 1248.25.
- Data releases scheduled for today, no local releases, from Europe German trade, current account and labour costs, from France we have budget YTD and industrial production, and from the U.S we have non-farm payrolls, manufacturing payrolls, and unemployment, average hourly earnings, participation rate and Michigan survey.
- The dollar has continued to find support over the most recent sessions and this is likely to continue as we approach the U.S data this afternoon.
- Possible trading range in the rand today 13.6000 to 13.9000

- Oil is heading for a second weekly loss as investors turn their attention to expanding U.S. oil production and gasoline stockpiles after OPEC last month agreed to extend supply cuts. Futures little changed, down 3% for the week.
- Gold is heading for the biggest weekly drop since May as investors anticipate higher U.S. interest rates, and progress on tax reform buoys the dollar. Gold for immediate delivery has slumped 2.5% this week

South Africa

- The JSE ended the day marginally higher, up 016% at 51656.60. The focus was yet again on the Steinhoff Group, with SNH tumbling a further 43.21%, and Starr down another 10.53%. Another big loser was EOH Holdings, which plunged 34.7%. The mining sector, together with Naspers (+2.52%) lent support to the market, with the likes of Exxaro and Kumba Iron Ore adding 3.33% and 5.23% respectively, while Impala was the best performer in the platinum sector adding 4%. The value traded at the close was R27billion and the ZAR was trading at 13.67 vs the dollar.

UK/Europe

- European markets closed mostly higher on Thursday, with the FTSE100 falling to a ten week low, dragged lower by energy and consumer staples after sterling rebounded on Brexit talks continued between Northern Ireland and Britain, opening the possibility of a deal that would allow Brexit talks to continue to the next phase. Ladbrokes Coral added 3% after bookmaker GVC offered 3.9 billion pounds for the company to create a betting giant. Elsewhere in Europe, financial and tech stocks rose, but Steinhoff continued lower, falling 45%. Tech stocks were lifted strong gains from French operator Orange, which rose 2.1% after announcing plans to add customers and to boost profit margins by investing in networks rather than buying foreign rivals. The DAX added 0.36%, the CAC40 rose 0.18% and the FTSE declined 0.37%.

USA

- US markets closed firmer, buoyed by tech stocks, with the likes of Facebook and Alphabet adding 2.3% and 1.2%, rebounding from recent weakness. General Electric (+0.35) saw modest gains after announcing they were cutting 12000 jobs. Consumer staples underperformed on the S&P, with the likes of Proctor & Gamble, Pepsico and Coca-Cola all losing more the 1%. The Nasdaq rose 0.54% with the S&P500 and Dow adding 0.29%.

Asia

- Asian markets are trading firmer this morning tracking the firmer close in the US last night. In Japan, real estate and chip related stocks outperformed, with Japan Display surging 12% on news Apple Inc may use LCD for one of its three new smart phones they are planning to release next year. Hong Kong and Chinese stocks rose on better than expected Chinese trade data, with exports and imports accelerating in November, after a slow October. Tencent was up 2.65%. Australian stocks rose with higher overnight oil prices lifting the energy sector, but BHP Billiton and Rio Tinto were trading slightly lower, weighed by a 7.5% falling in Iron Ore prices, amid growing concerns that steel demand will decline as winter kicks in.

Japan

- Japanese GDP growth eased to 0.6% q/q in Q3, from 0.7% previously, beating consensus of 0.4%. Domestic demand slowed sharply over the quarter, residential investment contracted, capital investment slowed, along with fixed capital formation and most other subcomponents in the GDP basket.
- Nonetheless, the Japanese economy has achieved seven consecutive quarters of growth and was stronger than the preliminary forecast. Growth is being underpinned by positive global growth and demand for Japanese exports. However, most concerning is that local demand is extremely weak, and this has affected investment recently.
- The Japanese current account surplus widened to ¥2.44 trillion in October, from ¥1.8 trillion previously, better than forecasts of ¥1.9 trillion. The trade surplus (seasonally adjusted) rose, prompted by better exports. The main driver of the better current account balance was primary incomes, as the surplus rose sharply over the month.

Synopsis: The BOJ is unlikely to undertake explicit monetary tightening just yet, as inflation remains below the 2% target, despite rising marginally recently.

China

- The Chinese trade surplus widened marginally in November, to $40.2 billion, from $38 billion previously, better than consensus of $35 billion.
- The surplus was driven by a surge in export growth, while import growth remained almost unchanged. Exports were driven by coal, crude oil, refined products – there was an uptick almost across the board.

Synopsis: Given China’s strategy of diversifying away from a trade-oriented growth model, we are likely to see import growth slowing over the medium term. This may aid the trade surplus further.

SA

- SA mining production growth surged to 5.2% y/y in October, from a 0.3% contraction previously, better than consensus of 3%. Even the monthly performance was positive, at 3.4% m/m growth, from -6.8% previously.
- Key positive drivers of production were iron ore, coal and non-metallic minerals, which contributed +4.7% towards the headline. Production of the following minerals contracted in October: gold and diamonds, nickel and other metallic minerals.

Synopsis: Mining production activity therefore had a very positive start to the fourth quarter, despite commodity prices easing recently. Strong global demand may be the reason for significantly higher sales growth in recent months. If this pace is kept up, the mining industry may again make a positive contribution towards GDP growth in Q4. What could derail this recovery is any further decline in commodity prices, local confidence levels, further political uncertainty, or a slowdown in global demand.

Mining output positive, despite recent decline in commodity prices
