- Yesterday, the local session got underway with the rand trading around the 16.6000 level. Although there was initial demand for USD again, this scenario was short-lived, and the rand traded progressively firmer, with the momentum of the move to the downside accelerating as the rand breached beyond the recent lows around 16.5500, reaching a best level of 16.4100 in the local session, where it closed. In the overnight session, the local unit traded to an indicated best level of 16.3925, albeit briefly; this morning, it currently trades at 16.4100, the EURZAR is trading at 19.4490 and the GBPZAR is currently trading at 21.1705.
- The international markets again saw the major currency pairs occupy limited ranges, with the EURUSD having again tested the 1.1900 level, again failing to trade beyond its recent highs; this morning, it is currently trading at 1.1850. The GBPUSD is currently trading at 1.2900. Gold is currently trading at 1,961.50, marginally off from the same time yesterday, although slightly firmer from the time of the local close, when it was trading at 1,951.45.
- Data releases scheduled for today: locally, we have retail sales; from Europe, we have trade data for the zone; from the UK, we have CPI and the PPI and house price index; and from the US, we have mortgage applications, retail sales, business inventories and capital flows, and the FOMC is meeting.
- The rand yesterday managed to breach beyond the short-term technical support around 16.5500. Although it has thus far consolidated these gains, the market focus today will be on the outcome of the FOMC later today to provide insights. We have the SARB MPC and BoE meetings tomorrow.
- Possible trading range for the rand today: 16.2000 to 16.7000

- Oil prices rose, extending gains from the previous session, as a hurricane disrupted U.S. offshore oil and gas production and an industry report showed a big drop in U.S. crude stockpiles.
- Gold steadied as investors await the outcome of the Federal Reserve meeting to gauge whether the U.S. central bank will extend more support to bolster the economic recovery and for any clues on how policy makers will approach their new target of delivering average inflation. Base metals mainly lower.

- Top40 -0.58%; Data shows China's economic recovery is gaining pace; local market took a leg lower after US open. GenRet -2%; busy on our pad- locals better sellers of SHP and WHL ; TFG -4.8% (post nrs). Stock has been very strong into these numbers, so a little travel arrive scenario. TRU -3.29% we downgrade to underweight; SPG +3.70%; FY update-Beat on topline but a miss on HEPS; BS strong. No dividend; overall largely priced in. Worth noting: US Empire Manf. Beat at 17 vs 6.8 while Industrial Production was below at 0.4% vs 1%; German ZEW at 77.4-beat. UK/Europe

- European stocks rose for a third day as positive corporate updates boosted retailers and miners rose on data showing an acceleration in China's economic recovery. The Stoxx Europe 600 Index closed 0.7% higher, adding to its longest winning streak in a month. Retailers rallied after Hennes & Mauritz AB returned to profit and Ocado Group Plc reported a surge in sales. Miners advanced after Chinese data showed a rebound in consumption as virus restrictions eased, and a bigger-than-expected expansion in industrial production. Investors this week are awaiting key rate decisions due from the Federal Reserve and the Bank of England. For the Stoxx 600, which has been stuck in a 20-point range since June, the 200-day moving average remains the ceiling to watch. The benchmark crossed above it in intraday trading.

USA

- Technology shares led U.S. equities higher in the wake of this week's deals activity and data suggesting the global economic recovery is gaining traction. The dollar fluctuated, while crude oil edged higher. The S&P 500 rose for a third day, with nine of the benchmark's 11 market sectors gaining. Tesla Inc., Apple Inc. and Nvidia Corp. pushed the Nasdaq Composite higher after the index's worst week since March. Investors are awaiting the Federal Reserve's policy meeting Wednesday to gauge the outlook for markets following a slide of about 2% in global stocks this month. The Fed is expected to maintain its dovish stance after earlier saying it will shift to a more relaxed approach on inflation. Central bank largesse is shoring up sentiment in the face of risks from the pandemic, the U.S. presidential election and the possibility of a no-deal Brexit

Asia

- Asian stocks were little changed on Wednesday as investors awaited a Federal Reserve meeting to gauge the extent of central bank support for the economic recovery. Crude oil extended gains. Shares were little changed in China, Hong Kong and South Korea, and saw modest gains in Japan and Australia. S&P 500 futures were flat after the benchmark rose for a third consecutive session, as gains in technology shares helped offset a late slide in financials.
