- Yesterday, the local session opened with the rand trading in the low 16.70s. In another session in which emerging markets traded broadly weaker, the local unit lost ground as disappointing local GDP exacerbated this scenario, trading to a high of 17.0000 on the day, before ending the day trading in the low 16.90s. In the overnight sessions, the 17.0000 level again provided a top. This morning, the rand is currently trading at 16.9450, the EURZAR is trading at 19.9550 and the GBPZAR is trading at 21.9605.
- The international markets saw the USD recover and the major currency pairs drifting lower, although actual volumes were limited. The EURUSD traded from a high of 1.1826 yesterday; it currently trades at 1.1780. The GBPUSD was again somewhat more active as talks of a no-deal Brexit saw it lose ground; this morning, it is currently trading at 1.2970, having traded at a high of 1.3173 yesterday. Gold is trading basically unchanged from the same time yesterday, currently at 1,930.25.
- Data releases scheduled for today: locally, we have BER business confidence; no releases from Europe or the UK; and from the US, we have mortgage applications and Jolts job openings.
- The rand succumbed yesterday to woeful local GDP data, combined with a broad-based emerging-market sell-off as a result of renewed escalation in tensions between the US and China and a sell-off in the equity markets, the Nasdaq having fallen 10% in three days. The rand has now breached above the short-term technical levels; the next objective on the top side is around 17.10. A breach above this level is likely to trigger further losses.
- Possible trading range for the rand today: 16.7000 to 17.2000

- Oil extended losses after its biggest one-day drop in more than two months as growing doubts over the strength of the global demand recovery along with continued weakness in stocks soured market sentiment.
- Gold edged lower as the metal was caught between a strengthening U.S. dollar and a pullback in global equities.
