SNIPPETS

Currencies	The rand holds steady around the 14.3000 level
Commodities	Benchmark crude oil contracts have ticked higher
Equities	Joe Biden's intention to raise wealthy Americans' capital-gains taxes has halted the rally in the nation's stock market, and could see broad-based profit taking before the bill even makes it through Senate

- Yesterday, the local session got underway with the rand trading in the mid-14.20s. In another session of limited activity, the local unit again failed to make any meaningful progress in either direction, trading between 14.2150 and 14.3150 on the day. This morning, the rand is currently trading at 14.2950, the EURZAR is trading at 17.1940 and the GBPZAR is currently trading at 19.8170.
- Activity in the international markets was similarly subdued, with the EURUSD again occupying a limited trading range. This morning, it currently trades at 1.2028, effectivity unchanged from the same time yesterday. The GBPUSD is trading at 1.3861, after trading between 1.3830 and 1.3948 yesterday. Gold is currently trading at 1,785.25, also effectively unchanged from the same time yesterday.
- Data releases scheduled for today: there are no scheduled local releases; from Europe, we have manufacturing and services PMI releases for France, Germany and the zone; and from the UK, we have retail sales, public finances and net borrowing. From the US, we have various PMI releases as well as new homes sales data.
- The rand has continued to trade within limited ranges. Over the most recent sessions, the flows have been marginally skewed towards USD buyers; hence, we have thus far failed to make any meaningful or sustained gains below the 14.2000 level. As the week draws to a close and the local market heads into a “long weekend” for many, we are likely to encounter some position squaring and continued demand for USD, with liquidity in the rand on Monday likely to be tested.
- Possible range for the rand today: 14.1500 to 14.6500

UK/Europe

- European equities neared record highs on Thursday as strong earnings outweighed concerns over rising infections in Asia and as the European Central Bank reassured investors on its stimulus plans. The Stoxx Europe 600 Index climbed 0.7% by the close in London. The utilities, technology and food and beverage sectors were among the biggest gainers. Nestlé SA jumped after the company reported sales growing more than twice the rate analysts had expected. Hermes International also rose after revenue soared 44% in the first quarter, well ahead of analysts' estimates.

USA

- US stocks had their biggest slide in five weeks after President Joe Biden was said to propose almost doubling the capital-gains tax for the wealthy. The USD rose. The S&P 500 turned lower after Bloomberg News reported that for those earning USD1m or more, the new top rate, coupled with an existing surtax on investment income, means that federal tax rates for rich investors could be as high as 43.4%. Speculation arose that some traders could sell shares before any change was made to capture the lower rate. Equities whipsawed throughout the session amid mixed economic data and renewed concern the pandemic was worsening. All major groups in the S&P 500 fell, led by materials, energy and tech shares. AT&T Inc. rallied after beating profit estimates. Data showed sales of previously owned US homes slid in March to a seven-month low, while jobless claims posted an unexpected decline last week.

Asia

- Asian stocks fluctuated and futures rallied Friday following broad-based declines in US benchmarks as investors weighed a proposal for higher taxes on the wealthy to help pay for President Joe Biden's social plan. Shares were steady in China and rose in Hong Kong. Weakness in Japan weighed on MSCI, Inc.'s regional gauge. Chinese stocks advanced to be in line for their biggest weekly gain since February, driven by shares of companies that reported big jumps in first-quarter earnings this week. China's stocks may be somewhat of a haven from the proposed capital-gains tax hike in America should US funds look for alternative regions for equities exposure. The stability of the yuan will also support any flow from offshore investors.
