- On Tuesday, the rand was trading around the 14.80 level at the time of the local open. Again, the local unit initially lost ground as early demand for USD saw it trade to a high of 14.9475. Thereafter, the rand recovered from these early losses to end the local session at 14.8250. In the New York session, it did post further limited gains beyond the 14.80 level; this morning, it currently trades at 14.7800, the EURZAR is trading at 14.4730 and the GBPZAR is currently at 20.5075.
- The international markets largely held steady, with the EURUSD trading around the 1.1800 pivot for much of the session yesterday, with a marginally firmer bias going into the close yesterday. This morning, it currently trades at 1.1820. The GBPUSD is currently trading at 1.3874, after trading close to 1.3700 at the open yesterday.
- Gold is this morning trading at 1,805.65, which is USD10 firmer than at the same time yesterday.
- Data releases scheduled for today: there are no local releases; from Germany, we have consumer confidence; and from the US, we have advance goods trade, wholesale inventories and the FOMC, although this is after the time of the local close.
- The rand yesterday again lost ground initially to trade towards the 15.0000 handle before recovering. The markets will likely remain cautious today as we await the outcome of the FOMC, and the focus is likely to be on any indications of a taper.
- Possible trading range for the rand today: 14.6000 to 15.0000

- Benchmark crude oil prices have gained marginally with Brent crude oil still hovering close to $75 per barrel.
- Gold has moved back above $1,800 per ounce to trade at $1,805 per ounce while PGM's are better bid as they try to recover some of the losses seen in previous sessions.

Equities

Cash equities | +2711 535 4030/31

South Africa

- Top40 -1.1%. Another painful session as our heavyweight NPNPRX tracked the global tech selloff. It wasn't all bad, Resources ended the session unchanged while the domestic sectors tried their best, with retail +1%, industrials and financials both up 70bps. KIO (-0.1%) closed off session highs despite a solid set of results, with this set being well guided for and a weaker ore price on China news keeping gains capped. Overall volumes improved to R23bn, with NPNPRX accounting for the bulk of that, but decent crosses in MCG, CFR, IMP and BTI contributed to the number.

UK/Europe

- European equities dropped for a second day as investors digested a slew of company earnings and as a widening regulatory tech crackdown in China weighed on sentiment. The Stoxx Europe 600 Index closed 0.5% lower, paring an earlier drop of as much as 1.1%, led lower by technology, retailers and autos. Reckitt Benckiser Group Plc tumbled 8.4% after earnings missed estimates. Prosus NV, which holds a stake in Chinese media giant Tencent Holdings Ltd, was another big decliner, sliding 7.2%. European stocks have retreated this week from a record high reached last Friday as China's sweeping regulatory crackdowns have weighed on global risk appetite. Adding to this are concerns about rising virus cases possibly derailing the economic and profit recovery.

USA

- US stocks slid from a record high, with the Nasdaq 100 falling the most since May, as investors looked ahead to earnings from major technology companies after the bell. The S&P 500 closed down 0.5%. Five of the 11 major industry groups fell, with the consumer discretionary and communications services sectors leading losses. The Nasdaq 100 Index lost 1.1%, the most since 12 May, while the blue-chip Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped 0.2%. The shares of three tech titans – Apple Inc., Microsoft Corp. and Alphabet Inc. – fell ahead of their respective post-market earnings announcements.

Asia

- Asian equities dropped for a fourth day, with Japan and the Philippines leading losses on concerns related to coronavirus infections. Stocks in China fluctuated as investors continued to gauge the impact of the regulatory crackdown. The MSCI Asia Pacific Index slipped 0.8%, with Tencent and Taiwan Semiconductor among the biggest drags. China's CSI 300 Index fluctuated on the brink of a bear market amid efforts by state media to bolster investor confidence shaken by concerns over Beijing's escalating regulatory campaign. This week's sharp selloff in Chinese and Hong Kong stocks is dealing a further blow to Asian equities, which have already been underperforming their global peers. The MSCI Asia Pacific Index has wiped out all its gains so far for 2021 just as the S&P 500 and the Stoxx Europe 600 hit all-time highs in recent days. Both those gauges are up more than 14% year-to-date.
