- On Tuesday, the rand was trading around the 14,9700 level at the time of the local open. The local unit continued to trade with a weaker bias to reach an intraday high of 15,1525, closing the session marginally firmer at 15,1000. In the overnight sessions, the rand remained on the back foot and reached 15,1700 in the New York session. This morning, it currently trades at 15,1100, the EURZAR is trading at 17,6515 and the GBPZAR is currently trading at 20,4685.
- The international markets saw the EURUSD again trade around the 1,1700 level, albeit at the lower end of its recent ranges. This morning, it currently trades at 1,1685. The GBPUSD has traded steadily weaker as various issues continue to plague the UK economy. This morning, it currently trades at 1,3545, having opened yesterday above 1,3700. Gold, too, continues to lose ground; yesterday, it closed the local session around the 1 736,50 level; this morning, it is currently trading at 1 740,65.
- Data releases scheduled for today: there are no scheduled local releases; from Europe, we have the consumer, economic, industrial and services confidence indicators for the zone; from the UK, we have consumer credit and mortgage applications; and from the US, we have pending home sales.
- The rand again failed to find support, this as the traditional sellers of USD appear to largely remain on the side lines, apparently awaiting further rand weakness. This, combined with an oil price above USD80 a barrel and global concerns regarding a slowdown in China, does not bode well for the local unit, although the short-term technical indicators remain elevated.
- Possible trading range for the rand today: 14,9000 to 15,4000
